

A Study of Denki-kei's History

Supervisor: Prof. William Edward Ayrton

01-234567 Taro Denki

Abstract

“Todai Denki-kei” (Tôdai Denki-kei) derives from Department of Telegraphy in Imperial College of Engineering, Ministry of Industry (Kôbushô Kôgakuryô Denshinka) established in 1873.

1 Recent Events

Table 1 shows some important events of Denki-kei in this century.

Table 1: Some important events of Denki-kei in this century

Year	Event
2001	Department of Information and Communication Engineering established in Graduate School of Information Science and Technology
2005	Engineering Bldg. #2 completed
2008	Department of Electrical Engineering and Information Systems established (created by reforming Department of Electrical Engineering, Department of Electronics Engineering, and Department of Frontier Informatics)
2009	Undergraduate Department of Electrical and Electronics Engineering established

2 Professor Ayrton

Dr. William Edward Ayrton (Fig. 1) is the first professor of Denki-kei.

Fig. 1: Prof. W. E. Ayrton

References

- [1] Office of Denki-kei, Faculty of Engineering, the University of Tokyo “Shingaku Guidance Book 2016” (Japanese)